N.C. State Rep. Cody Henson entered into a Conditional Discharge agreement today with the State of North Carolina to resolve the cyberstalking charge brought against him earlier this year. Under the terms of this agreement Rep. Henson will obtain a mental health assessment and follow any recommendations therefrom. He will also complete an approved abuser program during the 12-18 months of probation. Upon his successful completion of the conditions of this agreement, the charge shall be dismissed.

The terms and conditions of this agreement specifically provide for Rep. Henson's continued representation of the citizens of Transylvania, Polk and Henderson Counties in the N.C. House, not imposing any travel restrictions which would hinder such service. Rep. Henson intends to fulfil his commitment to represent his District and will not be resigning from office.

In entering this agreement, Rep. Henson does acknowledge, in hindsight, that he was overly zealous in his attempts to save his marriage. He does not regret attempting to keep his family intact, but does now see that his methods were wrong.
